DAVIDSON HAD INNINGS TODAY

Tells Investigation Committee He Has All The Money Game Wardens Contributed.

THOUGHT THAT IT WAS ALL RIGHT

Said That Money Was Received As Campaign Contribution--Game Wardens Also Testify As To The Occurrence.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 10.—Gov. J. C. Davidson testified before the senatorial primary probe committee today that he received from State Game Warden Stone during the last campaign $1,200 in cash.
He did not know what it was for, where it was raised or why, except that it must have been a present for the campaign.
He spent $300 for the campaign, but not a cent of this $1,200, which he said he mingled with his own money and finally sent to be deposited in a bank.
He now has certificates of deposits for $2,000 and $700, both dated sometime in the middle of November after election.
The governor said he did not use this money because he feared "something might come up" about it. He thought it was all right for state employees under the civil service to make campaign contributions if they did it voluntarily.
Some of the deputy game wardens testified today that Head Warden Stone caused the campaign subscription to be made, also that they were with Stone when he handed the cash to the governor and that the latter said: "Oh you fellows are doing too much for me."
Today is the last day of this investigation, although it is possible the senate may continue the line of investigation at their separate quills.
Governor Davidson's testimony will practically conclude the work of the present joint committee. The writing up of the testimony and the printing of the same will finish their labors which have thus far resulted in sensational expenditures for campaign purposes but have disclosed an interesting state of affairs in previous campaigns.
The Senate investigation committee will be expected to conduct the probe on their basis and the same three Senators, March, Owen and Hastings will compose this special committee. Whether they will have the legal right to summon witnesses and pay them, remains yet to be solved but it is expected they will make the attempt to force the issue.
The investigation is the outgrowth of Senator Blum's sensational charge of corrupt use of money by Stephens and his campaign managers but his charge failed to materialize and he has been discredited by the committee who however made it an excuse for future investigations.
One of the interesting features brought out by the questioning was that the majority of the assemblymen and state Senators who opposed Senator Stephens' re-election were on lists of some other candidate and had to explain what they did with the money they obtained.
Another question which was brought up was the use of the game warden up to that for years this body of state-paid employees had worked in various campaigns under special direction from Senator La Follette, the Governor.
It is expected the only results of the investigation will be a measure to limit the amount of expenditures in primary campaigns and some restrictions if not the abolishment of the present game warden system. There are several measures now being framed to meet these requirements.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Less than a year ago Benson was acquitted here on a charge of conspiracy in the famous land fraud case. This time he is charged with the bribery of two clerks in the general land office for the purpose of securing the approval of various school land selections in Oregon and California.

WARDEN SYSTEM MAY BE ENTIRELY CHANGED

Legislators Would Abolish State Department for County System And Would Reduce Force.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 10.—Definite plans are being made for some radical changes in the state game warden's department. Two bills are pending before the legislature—one for the abolition of the office and the other for a county system. Upon one of these measures some of the members of the legislature expect to draft a substitute bill which will greatly reduce the game warden force, if the bill is enacted into law.
The revolution before the senatorial investigating committee of the manner in which the warden's department in politics have spurred the members of the legislature to favor some changes, and it is said that a investigating committee will make a report to the effect that the warden force should be reduced. Assemblymen believe the legislature will make a contest before the legislature. It is said for the passage of the repeal bill, using the testimony of warden before the committee, as a basis for his remarks.
Two bills are now pending before the legislature, either one of which can be modeled into a substitute bill, which shall effect the change sought. One of the measures is the bill introduced by Assemblyman Stewart of Dane county, which provides for the abolition of the state game warden's department and a county system, the county board electing wardens, to be substituted. The other bill is the repeal measure of Assemblyman Roethlisberger of Grant county.

The law which will probably be favored by a number of the assemblymen, will probably reduce the force of game wardens to seven or eight salaried officials, with prescribed districts for work, and with duties clearly prescribed. The department will then be placed fully under the operation of the civil service law.
One argument is being used for the retention of the department as a branch of the state government. This is that the fees collected from hunting licenses be turned into a fund that will pay for the warden's work. It is believed by some of the members of the legislature that such a law, the game can be properly protected and a large amount of money annually go into the state treasury, which, if unused, shall go into the general fund.

TARIFF BILL SENT TO SENATE AT NOON

PAINT DEALERS UP IN ARMS OVER BILL

Paint Men Do Not Like Proposed Legislation to Label Cans With Exact Formula of Contents.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Madison, Wis., April 10.—Wisconsin members of the National Paint Dealers' association are up in arms over the proposed legislation by which every can of paint sold in Wisconsin would have to be labeled, the label to contain the exact formula of the can's contents. This legislation is embodied in the Onstad bill, which is still before the assembly committee on dairy and food.
The paint dealers' protest is based principally upon the theory that the proposed law could not touch "mail order" paint, which is declared to be most properly subject to regulation, and the paint that the publication of formulas would destroy the small dealer's chief asset and make possible a "paint trust." The entire state has been flooded with circulars and circular letters by the association, and much of this matter has been sent to the legislators. The dairy and food committee of the lower house also has been bombarded with letters and its members with oral kicks more or less vigorous.

One letter received by several senators cites the fact that in Iowa similar legislation has fallen flat through the refusal of the state officials to enforce the law on the ground that it is "farcical." The Ohio law, it is asserted, has been repealed, and Nebraska and Pennsylvania are said to have similar exemptions to those of Ohio and Iowa. The letter also calls attention to the provision in the bill which places another chemist on the staff of the dairy and food commissioner, at $1,200 a year "and an unlimited expense account—and it costs money to travel and analyze."

"Not that all paints on hand July 1 will be back number stock, with the stigma of illegality, and note that the possession of unlabeled paint becomes prima facie evidence of the law's violation," says the letter.
The Onstad bill also has come in for considerable condemnation on account of the sentiment—especially in the country districts—in favor of some sort of regulation of the paint traffic. Injurious compounds and those which scale as soon as they are dry have been the bane of the farmers who are wont to do their own house, barn and shed painting but the dealers declare the principal cause of this trouble is the mail order house, and the state cannot legislate against their trade.
The Onstad bill probably will come up for hearing within a week or two.

NOTEWORTHY TRIALS IN SEVERAL CITIES

Will Attract Attention During the Coming Week—Jefferson's Birthday Banquet in New York.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Washington, D. C., April 10.—There promises to be little news of general importance emanating from the national capital during the week, aside from that furnished by the through the congressional bill of President Taft, so far as has been announced, has made no public engagements for the week. In fact, he is expected to continue his busy schedule of his office until near the end of April, when he will go to Philadelphia to speak at a Grant birthday banquet in that city.

Some important court proceedings will occupy attention in various parts of the country. John A. Benson of San Francisco, who was acquitted last year on a charge of conspiracy in the famous land fraud case, will have to face another jury in the District of Columbia. Benson is charged with the bribery of two clerks in the general land office in 1904 for the purpose of securing the approval of various school land selections in Oregon and California.
At Harrisburg, Architect Joseph M. Huston will be placed on trial on charges growing out of the scandal over the building and furnishing of the Pennsylvania state capital. The trial will be the third of the series of alleged "graft" cases following the exposure of several years ago. Several of the defendants have been convicted and others are yet to be tried. On similar charges of "graft," several officials, contractors and others will be placed on trial at Utica, N. Y., as a result of the recent sweeping investigation of the affairs of Onondaga county.

The eleventh annual meeting of the Conference for Education in the South will attract a large gathering of distinguished educators to Atlanta. The session will begin Wednesday and continue four days.

Governor Harmon of Ohio, Governor Marshall of Indiana, Representative Champ Clark of Missouri and several other democrats of national prominence will be heard at the Jefferson's birthday banquet to be given Tuesday night by the National Democratic club of New York city.

The week will witness the opening of the professional baseball season throughout a large section of the country. Both of the major leagues will start their contests for championship honors, the American league on Monday, the National league on Wednesday. Several of the minor organizations also will begin the season, among them the American association, Southern league, South Atlantic league, Texas league and Northwest league.

AROUSES SPECULATION AS TO HIS SUCCESSOR.

SALVATION ARMY'S DOMAIN

Now Embraces 8,055 Posts in 34 Countries And There Are Over 100,000 Officers And Employees.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
London, April 10.—General William Booth, the founder and head of the Salvation Army, was eighty years old today, and all over the world Salvationists of every degree and almost every color are celebrating the anniversary. The celebration in London is to consist of a series of monster meetings, beginning today and continuing through several days of next week. The aged general, who has just returned from a visit to Russia, where he went to intercede with the czar in an effort to secure the establishment of the Salvation Army in Russia, has promised to address several of the meetings. The celebration is an international one in every sense of the word, for from all parts of Europe leading members of the organization have come to London to attend the meetings.

A steady stream of congratulatory messages from all parts of the world poured in upon General Booth today at his headquarters in the city. The senders included not only the officers and many persons prominent in public life, philanthropists, educators, social reformers and noted divines took occasion to felicitate the aged general and congratulate him upon the success of his life work. A number of the London newspapers today contained eulogistic references to General Booth and the great organization of which he is the masterpiece. In many respects this birthday of General Booth is a momentous occasion. It not only represents the fact that the general has exceeded by a decade the biblical "three score years and ten," but promises to be almost a turning point in the fate of the vast organization over which at present he exercises autocratic control.

In the thousands of army outposts and barracks in various countries, speculation is rife as to General Booth's possible successor, for what thing is fairly certain—the general is rapidly approaching the end of his life. It is not only the fact that the general's eldest son, well known as the general's eldest son, and present chief of staff of the army, can succeed to the head of the organization when the great moving spirit has departed. But on the other hand, there are weighty opinions to the effect that General Booth has not the dominating individuality for the position and that when the general passes from the theatre of activity the army will fall to pieces—or, if not, will be kept going with a "general's" aid.

As if to combat the suggestion that General Booth's death will wind up the army, concerted efforts are being made throughout the world to demonstrate that the organization over which he presides is a permanent one, quite capable of sustaining itself in full efficiency even after the general has passed away. This feeling of uncertainty has brought out the emotional side of the birthday festivities, and they promise to be an event unique in the history of the Salvation Army.

It is now thirty years since the Salvation Army began work on its present name. It was about twelve years prior to 1875, Rev. William Booth had conducted a small organization in the east end of London under the name of "The Christian Mission." At that time Booth and his followers were the objects of much ridicule. The street meetings and the methods of the organization in general were looked upon as sensational and even the forces were hard pressed by persecution or ridicule. But the organization persevered and when its aims and work became better known public sentiment underwent a change.

In 1880 General Booth published a volume entitled "Darkest London," containing a scheme for the enlightenment and industrial support of the lower classes. The work attracted world-wide attention and was much commented upon. In its chief features the scheme of General Booth received the endorsement of many great churchmen. During the latter years of his life Queen Victoria made an annual contribution to the Salvation Army and it is understood that King Edward also has given the organization substantial encouragement.

CONDITIONS ARE MOST EXCELLENT
COMMUNICATION SIGNED BY 'JIM DUMPS' FINDS LITTLE TO COMPLAIN OF.
PESSEMIC VIEW TAKEN

However Paves the Way for Future Consideration of Civic Matters

To the Editor:
Several years ago you published in your columns a series of articles signed by the writer as "Old Fogey Jones." Some of them were practical, some brought results, but others were lost sight of in the general every day rush. Janesville is about ready for another summer of its existence and it might be wise at this time to say something about the city and the city's best interests.

A new mayor has been elected in William J. Carter, a business man of the old school—a man who has long been a respected member of the business world of Janesville and whose integrity is never questioned. The voters of the city have elected this man as mayor. For the next two years he is to be the head of the city government. Many problems of importance to the citizens are to come before the council and he will provide over for consideration and it is only right to say just now that Mr. Carter will see that the city's interests are well safeguarded.

The election which was held last Tuesday was a surprise to many. No one expected the voters of the city to name John C. Nichols mayor, but he came within a few votes of the coveted honor and would have been elected had it not been for political treachery on the part of democrats in the fourth and fifth wards. Mr. Nichols himself is a strong young business man and it was not his personality that defeated him, but some of his own followers. However, in his own feat, the citizens have named a man who will make an able mayor and will not be under the dictates of individuals or cliques of men.

In this connection, we might speak of the question of chief of police or city marshal. For the past year the police department of the city has been divided almost itself. It has been a double-headed hydra. It has had a chief of police and it has had a city marshal. One named by the fire and police commission, and the other elected by the council. The mayor has been taken into court for solution, has been tried in the circuit court, and is now pending a decision in the supreme court. Meanwhile the citizens have not been obtaining what they are paying for—ample protection. It is hoped that the decision of the supreme court will decide the matter for all time and the police department of the city can be what it should be—not what it is.

In the retirement of Mr. Badger as city clerk the city of Janesville loses an efficient and important city official. Mr. Badger knows the business of the city as no other man knows it and his loss will be felt by the old and new members of the council. His successor, Mr. Cummings, I know but little of as to his qualifications. His endorsement at the primaries and at election, however, is recommendation enough for his capability of holding the office and doing the work required in an able manner. However there will be more or less confusion following Mr. Badger's retirement which will somewhat hinder the work of legislation.

We now come to the new council. It is composed of business men. They have many questions of importance to deal with, have important positions to fill and their work should be carefully mapped out so that no error occurs. There is a rumor that Mr. Kerch is to be displaced as city engineer and friends of the city engineer are most anxious to have him retained, holding forth as an inducement that if he is displaced the city must pay for his testimony in a suit now pending with sewer contractors, while if he remains he will furnish it free. If a better man can be obtained for the office this argument should find little weight with the gentlemen who compose the council. Business is business, and the best man for the place should be obtained without fear or favor.

The other two offices to be filled by the council are those of street commissioner and health officer. There are many candidates for both offices. Good men who can be secured to fill them most acceptably are not scarce and this will not be such a hard problem to solve. Dr. Wauke the present health officer, has had the office but a year and has not really been tested. Dr. F. B. Burnsworth, another candidate talked of, is well and favorably known in the city and would make an excellent officer for this position. Dr. Buckmaster's name has also been mentioned and any of these three would be excellent men.

The question of street commissioner is a harder one to figure out. The present incumbent has been in office for many years. Perhaps it would be well to change and get fresh blood into the position. There is much to be done in the way of caring for the streets, much more than has been done in many localities in the past, and the position needs a good, careful man in charge of the work. However the council will care for this and the public does not need to worry. I have submitted these items with a view of calling attention of the editor and the public, if they are used later as to the interurban project, the work of the city street, possible legislation relative to the local street car lines and other civic improvement. Perhaps they will come in time.

Signed,

She has a great collection of prizes which she has won, and her mistress, though knowing nothing of cards, is satisfied "bridge is an excellent resource, and encourages the meetings of "the club." ONE METHOD OF MEASURING THE HEIGHT OF WHICH AIRSHIPS FLY IN COMPETITION.

"THE BILLY POSSUM."

The country will soon be surprised with Billy Possums. Toy manufacturers who within the last two years have put on the American market an estimated five million of Teddy bears are now preparing an estimated output of one million Billy Possums. If the million sell—and the American public accepts the successor to the Teddy bear—it is probable that the manufacture will exceed in quantity even that of the favorite of the last four years.

The possum was adopted by President Taft while he was in the south. Hence its name. The picture above shows a real live possum as he naturally is. The possum is well known in the south, and has been a southern by-word for ages. But he is a comparative stranger to the northerner. Down in Owensburg, Ky., is one southerner at least who doubts the ability of Billy possum to make good as the successor to the Teddy bear.

"Billy possum may be the logical successor of the Teddy bear, but he is not going to be the household pet that some folks imagine," says Colonel William Godkin of Owensburg.

"No, sir; not with folks who know of the peculiar habits and traits of the William Possum family," continues Colonel Godkin. "A Teddy bear breed up on a sofa pillow will stay put—will remain right there and not cause any streak of misery through the whole family. That is just where

BIG TRADE AT EASTER

Janesville Spends More For Easter Flowers Than Average City of Equal Size.

The approach of Easter, which invariably inoculates the feminine portion of humanity with germs of the most virulent form of shopping fever, no doubt means much to the milliner and the dressmaker, but they are far from being the only ones whose business is greatly increased by the coming of that festive season. Unfortunately, indeed, is the poor daughter of 18 who cannot afford to flout at least a new hat if not a new suit in the Easter day parade, but, if in addition to that, she cannot buy some blooming plant or cut flower in honor of the occasion, then she may truly be said to lack every outward and visible sign of the spirit of Easter. Holy week, for the florist as well as for the feminine outfitter, is the rush time of the year—the red letter week.

It may be said that the American people, if not the greatest lovers of flowers in the world, are the freest buyers. It is estimated that the city of New York alone spends $10,000,000 in floriculture. This passion for buying flowers is emphasized more emphatically at Easter than at any other time. Nor is Janesville an exception to this rule, for in this respect they are more truly American than many cities of the same size.

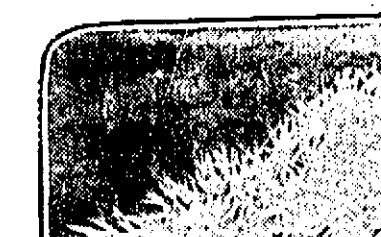

"It is safe to say that Janesville spends more for flowers during the Easter season than the average city of its size," said C. G. Dwight, owner of the Dwight Greenhouses. "Of course it is almost impossible to give any idea of the amount of money spent throughout the city, but the amount is large, well into the hundreds. The flowers are bought not only by and for the churches, but for the homes. There are few truly American homes that are complete on Easter without flowers of some kind."

With the exception of the Lilacs for which there is a great demand and for which the local florists must send away in order to get enough to meet the demand, all the flowers used in Easter decorations or for Easter gifts are raised in Janesville, was one of the facts learned at the Amorphous Greenhouses. The Easter Lily is of course the most popular. These beautiful flowers whose very image symbolizes the purity of the Easter festival are the most sought for and are regarded generally as the true Easter flower. Next in popular esteem comes the violet, then the rose, carnation and various spring flowers, including the white lilacs. Other flowers and plants that are also exhibited in the local greenhouses and store windows are azaleas, hydrangeas, hyacinths, tulips, and pansies. The prices of these plants range all the way from $2.50 to $3.50 a dozen.

There was a time not many years ago when the main lines were fighting the little interurbans with all their might and main. Now they are putting in interurban lines as feeders for their main lines. The New York, New Haven & Hartford was one of the first to recognize the great advantage of having interurban service in connection with the railroads and installed many such lines through their territory.

It has just been announced that the Union Pacific is about to engage upon the same enterprise and expects to spend this coming season two million and a half dollars in installing an interurban line touching a rich territory north of Denver. The line is to know as the Denver-Greeley road and this is only one of the many extensions planned along the Union Pacific line.

Interurbans as feeders are a success and when properly located and economically installed they pay better dividends per mile than do the main lines. But aside from all this, they aid the main lines in securing traffic, both passenger and freight, from all the surrounding districts.

The magnitude of the sales of flowers during the Easter season throughout the country can hardly be realized from observations in a small town. A better idea can be gained from some figures of the flower trade in the city of New York.
New York city alone spends annually $10,000,000 in floriculture. The millions of its buds that have been dumped into the metropolitan from the north, the many potatoes springing to life with the approach of Easter, and the demand, as is popularly supposed, they came from our little island in the southern Pacific, Hawaii, and from faraway Formosa, Japan and China. They do not actually enter the city like so many immigrants the day before Easter, but they come in advance, and from their semitropical homes are scientifically

"No, sirree, man, this Billy possum eat may gain some circulation in uninformed communities, but a 'lily' possum as a pet is worse than even a 'lily' and holds a shawl strap full of cat-tail-skunk. The Teddy bear was a wellbehaved, quiet sort of a citizen for children and foolish actor people to carry around; but, as I said at the beginning, a real live possum is only a common disturber in the brute creation. He's smart as a greased lightning, but he's too all-fired smart and set in his way to have around a house where white folks is livin'."

Cadillac Company Gets Dewar Trophy

Royal Automobile Club of England awards famous cup to American firm for most noteworthy performance of the Year 1908.

"There is particular gratification in the award of the Dewar cup to America because of the fact that this trophy is given not to spectacular or sensational achievements, but in recognition of serious contribution to the development of automobile construction and betterment.
The award to the Cadillac Company is based upon the remarkable standardization test conducted in the summer of 1908 by a specially selected committee representing the Royal Automobile club.
The conditions surrounding this test were not only unusual, but most drastic and severe.
Three Cadillac cars were selected from the London branch of the Cadillac Company by the committee, driven about 25 miles to the famous Brooklands track and there, under the most searching surveillance, were entirely dismantled, piece by piece, and part by part.
The parts, 721 from each car, were thrown into a conglomerate heap and the committee exchanged about 90 parts from stock to make the test more severe. The parts were then grouped and the work of rebuilding began.
These same three cars, later in the season, participated in a long endurance and reliability run and came through with flying colors.
Now, can anyone help but admit that this wonderful test of standardization (which is employed absolutely in everyone of the 10,000 Cadillac "Thirties" now building) puts the "Thirties" in a class by itself?

The Purpose of a Mask

The purpose of a mask is to disguise and deceive, and, therefore, no place outside of the frivolities of the masquerade. In business its use is criminal. Its intent is to mislead the buyer and give to the man with the mask an illicit profit. In conduct of our affairs there is no attempt to hide. Everything is open and above-board, so that those who run may read. Every garment we make is STRICTLY MADE TO MEASURE, and our work-rooms are open wide to all who wish to see. We mean just what we say—nothing more and nothing less. When we state that a fabric is all wool we mean that it contains no cotton. And wool with no spurious PURE wool—not imitated cotton or any other skillful imitation. The same applies to every feature of our business. NOTHING IS MASKED.

Truth and sincerity are the standard on which we work and those who care to analyze our methods will find them as clean as the crystal mountain brook.

MEN MADE FAMOUS BY TARIFF REVISION.

The tariff fight which is now holding the center of the political stage involves one of the most complicated problems in modern economics. Men have been made and unmade through their attitude on tariff. This does not mean that the fundamental idea back of the system is new, for its history can be traced back to the times of Julius Caesar and Rome, where a similar system of "portulancos," port duties, existed.

The word "tariff" is supposed to have been derived from the name of a town in Spain, Tarifa, in which port vessels passing were compelled to stop and pay tribute.

As early as 860, A. D., duties were collected in England. Up to the time of the founding of the republic of the United States, tariff had been solely a revenue raising institution, but in 1770, with the first congress of the United States, a new feature was injected into the idea, that of protection of home industries.

Almost every administration since Washington's has had to meet the tariff proposition face to face. During the time tariffs have averaged all the way from 8 1/2 per cent to 50 per cent. Soon after the first tariff was levied, in 1789, at 8 1/2 per cent ad valorem, it was found this was not sufficient and it was raised to 11 per cent and then to 13 1/2 per cent. In 1812 this tax was nearly doubled, as a war measure for revenue. Four years later the great Henry Clay was largely responsible for the framing of a new tariff bill which reduced the schedule. While the Clay schedules were considerably under the present tariff, it was Clay's idea to afford protection. Little duties averaged about 30 per cent.

Ten years later this reached 37 per cent and a year later 41, the highest tariff in the history of the republic to that time. The trouble broke out in South Carolina, which state declared the law providing for the collection of revenues in the various states to be null and void and no law. A threat to secede was embodied in the declaration to the United States congress. President Andrew Jackson at once issued a proclamation in which he discussed the doctrine of state rights and followed up his determination to preserve the Union by dispatching a detachment of the army to South Carolina and by sending a war vessel to her port, which measure put an end to the proposed nullification.

Then came the horizontal reduction. The tariff was still further reduced in Polk's administration by a bill submitted by Robert J. Walker, then secretary to the treasury. This bill provided for a revenue tariff with incidental protection. The average duties were about 25 1/2 per cent. This was still further reduced to an average of 20 1/2 per cent 12 years later.

This period from 1846 to 1860 was one of comparative free trade and had it not been for the outbreak of the Civil war the problem of protection might have been determined by the

Appetite Gone

Dr. Miles' Nerve is prepared for just such conditions, and seldom fails, because it soothes irritated nerves, and assists the nerve cells to generate nerve energy.

"I was weaker, nervous, had no appetite, no ambition, was nervous and easily excited. Doctors gave no relief. I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve, and am now perfectly well. Less than $10 cured me."

The first bottle will benefit! If not, your druggist will return your money.

experience of the period just past. But the great conflict between the states compelled the ones remaining in the Union to raise the duties in order to provide means to carry on the war.

Justin S. Merrill of Vermont was the author of the new tariff measure in 1861, which increased duties on one-third and in 1864 these were again raised 50 per cent for 90 days. By 1870 the country had so far recovered from the ravages of war that reduction in duties were begun. For the next 10 years the tariff remained around the 40 per cent horizontal reduction mark, until "Horizontal Bill" Morrison came forward with his 20 per cent horizontal reduction on practically all existing tariffs.

Then came President's Cleveland's first administration with the Mills bill as its features. But the Mills bill lost owing to the fact that the senate was Republican. The chief issue for the next campaign was tariff revision and with the election of Harrison, the Republican candidate. The success was construed to mean that the people demanded a higher protective tariff. This resulted in the enactment of the McKinley bill, which raised duties to a level with that which had prevailed during the Civil war.

A change of sentiment came and in the following presidential campaign, in 1892, Mr. Cleveland was again elected and this time he had the support of a Democratic congress.

William L. Wilson, Democratic chairman of the house committee on ways and means, carried his bill through the fifty-third congress. Mr. Wilson as a great student of the economic problem and at least one of the features of the Wilson bill remains in force today, which provides for reduction in all sorts of iron and steel manufactures. The Dingley bill, which is in force at the present time, came with the McKinley administration. By the Dingley act duties are levied ad valorem and specific.

Thus we see that the problem of tariff revision is an old one, but one which becomes more complicated with each administration.

Learn to Plan Homes.

Two years ago the University of St. Petersburg decided that women might attend the lectures, as it seemed probable that this course could not contain anything that could make politicians of the students. Recently there has been an exhibition of the work of the architectural students, and experts who saw it were surprised to find that the work of the women students compares so favorably with that of the men. In the work of planning homes especially the women were most original in their ideas, and carried out details that would, as a general thing, have been beyond the men students. It is predicted that especially in home architecture the women will make a success of their work.

Electrical Inertia.
A curious experiment with an electric discharge conducted round a right-angled corner is described by Prof. Francis E. Nipher. The corner was formed by bending sharply the conducting wire. A photographic plate, placed in a half-rubber holder, was placed under the wire in such a way that the discharge would descend toward it, then turn at a right angle and pass horizontally above it. It was found that when a negative discharge passed down the wire to the angle the electrical particles kept straight on their way instead of turning, penetrated the rubber cover and affected the enclosed plate. But when the discharge was positive no such effect was produced. The current apparently turned the right-angled corner without, so to speak, shooting off at the bend.

YOUR CALL TO THE FRONT

Young man, young woman, you are on the threshold of your career. You must soon make your decision, in fact every day you are deciding for your future. A wrong decision now means a life-time of regret.

Consider well all avenues of possible success. Investigate carefully. Ask the men who know.

Then choose, and having chosen, with courage, confidence and concentration, set out AND WIN.

THINK OF IT.
750 Dollars—the average lawyer's income.
1400 Dollars—the average doctor's income.
1000 Dollars—the average dentist's income.
And that, too, after an investment of from $2000 to $4000 in a College Education and at a cost of 4 of the best years of life.

NOW THINK OF THIS.
It is a poor business man who is not enjoying an annual income in excess of $2000. $5000 is a very common thing! $10000, $25000, yes $50000 are such common incomes in the Business World that the mention of the fact causes no surprise or comment.

Certainly the Business Man is King. Business places no limits to your success. The big prizes are calling for men and women of red blood, daring and enterprise. When you choose don't limit yourself—give your ability and intelligence range to work. Be sure you can more quickly reach success and power through the Battlefields of Business. The Standard Building Block Cost Less Than Any Other Concrete Block in Janesville

Figuring per running foot, the cost is but 12c.
No other blocks are made as carefully as are the STANDARD, or of as good materials. No other block is made with a WATERPROOF FACE.

There are distinct advantages in the block that is made face-down, like the Standard is made, and there is an advantage in the block made of the size of the Standard.

The Standard block will not turn white, nor will it crack. These two points are assured because of the excellent materials used, and because of the waterproofing compound used.

The Standard block is made in four varieties—bold rock face, medium and smooth rock face, and tool face.

We manufacture porch spindles, columns and ornamental spheres to harmonize with the blocks.

If you are going to build, let us compare costs of Standard Concrete Building Blocks with other blocks, or with other material. Be sure to investigate these claims.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

In 1866 there was organized in Philadelphia a unique club known as "the last man's club." Its membership was confined to 33 men, from almost every walk in life, congenial spirits who met once a year with no particular purpose but to have a good time.

This yearly meeting was a banquet, held at one of the principal hotels, and each member contributed $5 in annual dues to pay expenses. The one obligation which all regarded sacred was to be present at the banquet. When death commenced to deplete the ranks the vacant chair of the departed member was draped in mourning, and as time went on these vacant chairs increased in number, until they were in the majority.

When the membership was reduced to half a dozen members the banquet hall presented a weird appearance and the few survivors found it difficult to make merry in the presence of so many sad reminders of happier years.

In 1900 "the last man" of the 33 found himself at the head of a table with only long rows of chairs on either side, draped in memory of departed comrades, for he was the sole survivor pledged to banquet alone when all the rest were gone, and so he drank champagne of the vintage of 1866, saved for the occasion, and commended with himself and the ghosts of the departed.

This old man lived in Hartford, Conn., and two years later he organized in that city the second "last man's club," and the only one today in existence. Notices have just been sent out for the sixth annual meeting, which is held on the 12th of April at the leading hotel in Hartford.

The old man who organized the club died two years ago, and two other members dropped out last year. Some of the members are in middle life, but before the century is half gone the last man will celebrate alone the anniversary.

This organization which seems so freakish, and which resembles in some respects the Suicide club, is a forceful reminder of experiences common to every community where men and women spend a lifetime, and where they frequently become the sole survivors of a generation.

It is a pathetic thing to note the old man who comes back to the town where his active life was spent, after an absence of many years, and observes the disappointment when he discovers that he is practically alone in the old haunts with which he had been so familiar.

It will be remembered that Mr. Spaulding, an old resident of Janesville, returned after an absence of 30 years to find but one man in the town who remembered him, and yet he had been prominent in business and social circles. The tragedy which followed, when he visited the silent city on the hill, was the closing chapter in a last man's life, for loneliness and homesickness overcame him, and he was unequal to the strain.

More pathetic still are the lives of some old people who never leave the home environment, but who through inactivity rust out and are forgotten. There are people of this kind in every community—men who have retired from business and active life 20 years too soon. They are on the shelf before they realize it, and the busy hum of life soon becomes an echo, and they are so far in the rear of the procession that all hope to regain a footing is abandoned.

The "last man's club," as an organization, is a novelty, but the last survivors of a generation, are common to every-day experience.

On Staten Island, five miles across from the Battery, is a substantial brown stone building surrounded by old trees. For many years it has been known as the old actors' home, and every pleasant day groups of old men and women gather on the verandas and discuss the conquests of other years. They are derelicts waiting for the curtain in the closing act.

Not far distant is located the Sailors' Snug Harbor, where hundreds of old mariners are housed and cared for through the philanthropy of a man of great wealth, who invested a fortune for the comfort of men who had grown old and feeble in battling with the storms of the world's great highways.

This Snug Harbor is on the waterfront, and every day the bay is crowded with craft of every description, steaming out for a long voyage across the Atlantic, or coming in to find refuge in the land-locked harbor. Old eyes, dim with the strain of years, peer out over the busy thoroughfare, and old hearts glow with warmth as memory harks back to other years.

Across the way is the largest school building on the island, with accommodations for 1,200 pupils. When this current of young and restless life rushes out and through the grounds the scene presents a sharp contrast to the quiet panorama in Snug Harbor, where time is the largest asset, and where there is no hurry.

Between these two extremes of childhood and foolishness is the busy active throng, jostling each other for a foothold on the world's great thoroughfare.

From the immigrant who daily lands at Castle Garden with bundles and chests from the fatherland and timidly looks around for a sheltering niche, to the stream of vehicles which crowd Broadway and the avenues, all is bustle and confusion, and the thought is impressed that the struggle for existence frequently demands all the strength of mature and active life.

Generations come and go and the responsibility of preparation for the journey finds the highway lined with men and women who have dropped out by the way.

Many of them should still be in the race, and would be if perpetual youth had been cultivated. One of the favorite mottoes of Elbert Hubbard is "80 years young," and it expresses the right sentiment, for no man wants to be a representative of the "last man's club."

When J. M. Postwick dropped out suddenly and unexpectedly the whole city mourned, for it had not occurred to any one that a man so active and useful was near the border line.

When J. M. Postwick dropped out suddenly and unexpectedly the whole city mourned, for it had not occurred to any one that a man so active and useful was near the border line.

Had he been a derelict for 10 years no one would have missed him, outside the home. There is only one way to keep young, down to the verge of time, and that is to keep in the current. It may tax energy and exertion, but it is worth the effort. The never grows old and the heart is the mainspring of life.

Advertisements of Janesville's advantages can not be sent out broadcast any too soon to please the businessmen of the city and one way to do this is to have a Home-Coming so that former residents can see what a fine city they have deserted for their new homes.

So those Chicago women with their monster petition were ignored when they did reach Washington and they say that Congressman Mann is responsible for the whole snub. Well, Mann runs for reelection two years from now, ladies.

Congress has passed on the tariff measure, that is, the lower house has and there are some free articles on the schedules sent to the Senate for consideration. However, when the measure leaves this august body it will not be the same by a good deal.

There seems to be much pro and con talk about the spring shooting this year and as many hunters appear for as against the proposed measure. However, the slaughter will probably begin on schedule time as planned by the pot hunters.

Think of dear, good, old Senator Morris sitting there as a judge on the men who received money for campaign purposes and then having to admit that he got some himself. "Only he wouldn't do it again," Bosh!

Janesville chicken fanciers are planning for a big exhibit next winter and with the prestige gained by their last show they should have the support of every businessman who wishes to see the city placed on the map to stay.

There is a rumor to the effect that the interurban project will receive opposition when it comes before the council. One can readily see where such a rumor can find grounds for being started with the opposition of the railroads combined against it.

This false alarm about springing here appears to have been based upon an idle rumor that spring should arrive—not that it was actually on the scene.

April 20th is not so far off and then it can be learned whether the council or fire and police commission have the power to name the head of the police department.

If the weather is fine there should be a wonderful display of fire on the streets tomorrow. The Easter parade is usually one to be watched with interest—and sighs.

The new council are to name a new city engineer, a new street commissioner and a new health officer; that is, if they do not name the old ones over again.

It is not yet circus time, but the small boy is wondering when it will come and whether it will rain circus day or not.

The spring migrations have not really commenced, although a few isolated cases of wanderlust have appeared.

So Governor Davidson is to have his innings with his dear friends, the senatorial investigating committee.

HIGH HEELS IN COURT.

Twice recently in New Jersey women have lost cases in court because they wore high heels on their shoes.

Damage suits were brought against street car companies because of injuries sustained by the women in alighting from the cars.

The companies showed in court that the plaintiffs were wearing shoes with opera heels at the time of the accidents, and the suits were dismissed.

In legal phrase, these women were guilty of "contributory negligence."

That is to say, if you have an accident and you have contributed to the negligence of the company by your negligence you are guilty along with the company and cannot recover.

It was held to be negligence on the part of the women that they should wear high heels that tended to trip them on the steps of the cars.

Well—No more man can quite conceive why any woman should want to wear this kind of stifled foot gear.

It is because she conceives the idea that her foot looks smaller in such an unnatural posture? As a matter of fact, the foot of my lady appears larger in such a situation.

And her carriage! No ordinary woman is able to maintain a graceful pose of her body on stifled shoes. A dabbler who has devoted her life and talents to posing on her toes may do so without awkwardness, but the unpracticed woman who tries it makes a really pitiful spectacle of herself.

That the high heeled shoe is unhealthy goes without saying. Any physician will explain that not only the limbs, but the various parts of the body, are put into a false and strained position, causing derangement.

The curious thing to the average masculine mind is how a poor creature can transport herself at all under such difficulties.

And—If the woman who goes along the street with her feet thrust forward, leaning painfully along like a blind horse, seeking precarious footing—if she could only see herself as others see her!

OFFICE AT

PEOPLE'S DRUG CO.

RICHARD C. KERENS

GEN. GROSVENOR

TWO MEN LIKELY TO BE HONORED WITH HIGH DIPLOMATIC APPOINTMENT.

Washington, D. C.—Among those prominently considered for foreign posts as representatives of the United States is Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, who will likely be appointed United States ambassador to Austria-Hungary.

Another is Gen. C. H. Grosvenor of Columbus, Ohio, a man well known to President Taft, who is likely to be honored by appointment as minister either to Belgium or Holland.

General Grosvenor is a prominent lawyer and former congressman from the Eleventh Ohio district. He has lived six years part of the three-score and ten and for many years has been prominent in Ohio politics. He has been honored by his constituents frequently and his appointment will be gratifying to his many friends.

Richard C. Kerens is a railroad builder well known for his ability. During his life he has always found time for politics and was three times a Republican candidate for the United States senate. He was one of the commissioners from Illinois to the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago, from which exposition he resigned to accept an appointment as one of the three United States commissioners of the Inter-Continental railway.

He was especially honored in 1901 by receiving the Laetitia medal the University of Notre Dame. He served during the four years of the war in the Union army and after the war located in Arkansas, where he became contractor for the Southern Overland Mail, controlling many frontier routes. Ten years later he acquired railroad interest and identified himself with the construction of the Cotton Belt system, the West Virginia and Pittsburg railway system and several other important lines of railway.

Should Kerens receive the appointment to Austria-Hungary, he will succeed Charles S. Francis, who during the last three years has been ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to Austria-Hungary.

NO STEEL TIES FOR ACTOR.

Tragedian Comes Forward With Grievance for Which Real Sympathy Will Be Felt.

He had long hair and it was black, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. His voice was heavy, so heavy that at times it rattled.
"Have the common people any rights?" he asked.
"A few," the editor admitted.
"And the uncommon people—how about them?"
The editor adroitly parried the question.
"State your grievance," he said.
The stranger assumed an impressive pose.
"I am an actor," he announced, "and while I am a very busy man, I find time to read the daily journals. In your sheet this morning, sir, I noted the statement that certain railroads are to adopt electricity as a motive power. In this connection, they will use steel ties instead of wooden ones. These steel ties, I am informed, are apt to carry powerful electric currents. There are times, sir, when, through lack of financial appreciation, actors are forced to use the railroads—but not the cars. I am a tragedian, sir. I have played Hamlet and Lear. Do you think it right for soulless corporations to force a Hamlet or a Lear to dance a frantic minuet, as it were, on one electric-charged tie to another? Can these corporations do this unjust thing?"
"It'd like to see 'em try it," said the editor, as he turned back to his work.

BIDWELL & HILLER SOLD MUCH BUTTER TO BELOIT PATRONS

L. H. Burr identifies them as Parties From Whom He Bought From Time Over 1,000 Pounds.

L. H. Burr of the Beloit grocery firm of Burr Bros., came to Janesville this morning and positively identified William Hiller and George W. Bidwell as the parties who sold his firm, at various times, from 1,000 to 1,200 pounds of butter, now alleged to have been portions of consignments from Johnson Creek which were stolen from C. & N. W. refrigerator cars during the months of January and February. Neither man would acknowledge that he ever saw Burr before but both seemed ill at ease. The grocer said that the pair had been dealing with him for some time, always delivering their wares in a wagon. Hiller, he said, went under the name of E. O. Brown. At one time he remarked that the butter looked as if it had been worked over and the custodians of the supply promptly declared that this was true; that the original crocks in which it had been contained had broken and it had therefore been necessary to put it in new receptacles. The explanation seemed plausible and the grocer never had any reason to suspect that all was not straight and legitimate. The cash paid out to the pair amounted to over $250.

C. M. Fausel, the C. & N. W. Ry. Co.'s special agent, and Officer William Mason discovered and traced out the clues to the missing property which led to Beloit, and they were given material assistance in carrying on the search by District Attorney J. L. Fisher. Once convinced that the stolen property had not been shipped out of here by train or interurban, they took a different tack which soon led them to the neighboring city. No new complaints have as yet been preferred against Bidwell and Hiller and it is possible that they will be tried first on the original charge of stealing certain chattels belonging to John Hanson. "We are working on several other very promising clues," declared Mr. Fausel this morning, "and we are never going to let up."

Secured Change of Venue.
Bidwell, through his attorney, Charles Pierce, waived the reading of information filed against him in municipal court this morning, and filed a petition for a change of venue to circuit court. Judge Fildel granted the petition and on the prisoner's plea of "not guilty," bound him over for trial at the May term. The case, however, may be taken up by consent the latter part of the present month. Hiller, also, secured a change of venue to circuit court several days ago.

Beloit, Wis., April 10.—The Beloit Federation of Women's clubs has announced its intention of taking steps toward compelling the erection of smoke-consumers on the smokestacks of all Beloit factories. The smoke nuisance has been very little abated for some time but is bothersome and has been brought to the attention of the Women's clubs who will do all in their power to abate it.
As they have done in years previous, the federation will again have a flower garden contest for the pupils of the public schools.

Judge Pinot committed him to the county jail for fifteen days but suspended sentence just ten minutes in order to give him an opportunity to "scratch gravel" for a fairer field.

Cure for Headache.

One of the very best remedies for a sick or nervous headache was suggested to me recently by a Finnish servant girl. She took raw potatoes without either washing or paring and cut them into thick slices. These were laid close together on the forehead and temples and kept in place by covering with a large handkerchief folded cornerwise and tied in the back.
In a short time the pain disappeared. As the pieces of potato get hot replace with cold fresh ones.
They give all the coolness of ice without the incidental dampness, and there is not the burning sensation ice often causes.

This afternoon at half past one, the funeral services of the late Mrs. B. W. Gould were held at the late home of the deceased on Milton avenue. The services were conducted by Rev. J. C. Hazen and were very largely attended. The coffin was decked with many beautiful sprays of flowers. Andrew and James Scott, J. G. Hayner, Herman Gunkle, C. W. Kommerer and E. B. Hilton acted as pallbearers. The remains were laid to rest in Oak Hill cemetery.

Robert Bell.

BASEBALL SEASON AT HAND.
That the baseball season is rapidly drawing near will be quickly brought to the mind of anyone who should chance to pass the hardware store of H. L. McNamara on W. Milwaukee St. The window display of baseball paraphernalia is unequalled by anything of the kind in Janesville and a larger or better window display of baseball goods is seldom seen in more metropolitan cities. It consists solely of the D. & M. Co.'s line of goods which are admitted by experts everywhere to be the standard in baseball goods. McNamara's line includes everything from a baseball to a full uniform. While these goods are of the highest quality the prices are very reasonable.

BROKE INTO MAIL BOX AND DESTROYED LETTER

To tamper with the mails or boxes used for mails is a serious offense, as some person or persons will undoubtedly discover. Yesterday Mrs. J. E. Waterman, living in the town of Rock on Janesville Route No. 4, left a letter addressed to the Janesville Gazette in the mail box in front of her home to be brought to Janesville and pass through the post office here. The letter never reached the Gazette office, but was found torn to bits this morning in the road. Mrs. Waterman immediately sent word to the Gazette and the postal authorities in this city will be notified. An investigation of the occurrence will probably be started. If the miscreant is discovered it will go hard with him, for the punishment is very severe for tampering with mail boxes on rural routes.

THE MOST ABUSED BOY WHO EVER LIVED TO TELL THE TALE. HARRY DONOVAN, WHOSE EXPERIENCE WITH A GANG OF THIEVES WITH WHOM HE WAS FORCED TO ASSOCIATE ALL BUT COST HIS LIFE.

Philadelphia.—With his nose partially showed off, his right ear torn almost to the point of severing, a nine-inch gash from a hot poker over his right eye, a corresponding four-inch gash over the left eye, both eyes practically closed from flat blows, mouth bruised and bleeding, cheek cut open from a blow with a poker, besides numerous body bruises, tell the story of the most inhuman action toward a boy of tender years in recent record. Little Harry Donovan, 9 years old, was the victim and a man who claims to be his stepfather, an acknowledged thief, together with his wife inflicted the injuries.

The case has just come to light, when residents living in the same house with the Donovans heard the pitiful moans of little Harry and sought the cause. It is thought that evidence which was found in the home may lead to the conviction of a gang of Philadelphia's yeggmen and safe blowers. Thus a double interest attaches to the story.

The Donovans are a family of mystery. Nobody knows from whence they came nor what their business is, and it is thought that the boy is not their own child, for, according to his best memory, he states he was stolen from his grandparents in Paterson, N. J., some time ago. Every effort is being made to locate the grandparents and restore the boy to his former home. The boy thinks he was stolen by his mother and taken to the office of a society to protect children from cruelty and the support-tion is that the Donovans got him from the society.

It was Hans Savinski, the landlord of the house at 703 Wood street, where the Donovans have been staying for some time, who first discovered the pitiable plight of the boy. Together with Fred Dousand, who occupies the first floor front, he went to the Donovans' suite, where the heart-piercing cries of the boy on the second floor was heard. Realizing the boy's condition they called in a policeman and the boy was taken to Hahnemann hospital to have his wounds dressed. They also made a search of the quarters and found large quantities of wax and soap such as are used by yeggmen in blowing safes, also a complete set of burglar's tools hidden under Donovan's mattress, together with numerous pawn tickets.

The boy's story in his own words is as follows:

"Both father and mother were out and they locked me in the room, as they usually did when they left me alone," said the lad after recovering from his fright. "Father's keys were in the drawer, but it was dark when he came home in the evening, and it took me some time to find the keys and open up for him. Then, as soon as he got into the room he started to beat me. He got more and more angry when the people in the house called to him. They took me out at night and put me over fences to open up back gates, and they put me in through the top of doors to open the from from the inside of houses. I knew they were robbing the places, and I didn't want to do it. But they pushed me into the alleyways and dropped me over the fences, and I couldn't get out unless I opened the gates. But when father beat me and I said I would run to the police station if he didn't stop, he beat me worse yet and said he would knock my head off and kill me.

"I don't know the places we went to at night. They were all strange places and some big houses. I always got home earlier than father. After I had opened the gates and the doors mother took me home and I was told to say I had been to the theater. Sometimes when father had been out very late or had been away for more than one day, he came home with a whole lot of stamps."

The boy's story about postage stamps brought to the Wood street house convinced the police that the step-father was a member of the gang of yeggmen that have blown up several suburban postoffices within the last year.

"There is no doubt that Donovan is a safe-blower, and with the evidence we have in our possession we will go ahead on the case and see what crimes we can connect him with," said Lieutenant Ewing yesterday.

"Mrs. Donovan claims to be a peddler and fortune teller, but we believe she merely traveled ahead of the safe-blowing gang to look over the territory," continued the officer.

"I could not stand to listen to the cries from the poor boy," said Frederick Dousand yesterday in telling how he called the police to arrest Donovan. "I went up stairs and knocked on Donovan's door and told him that if he did not stop I would break in the door and give him two punches for every one he gave the boy. That was in the evening, but at night we were awakened again by the cries of the boy. Then I went up again, Donovan had a small window in his door. He opened it up and struck matches, and for every match he struck he gave the boy a punch so that I could see it in the match light. I've kept it up for the spite after I had remonstrated with him. I was afraid he would kill the boy, and I told him I would call the police. Savinski, the landlord, was there, too, and we told the police about it."

Savinski and Dousand agree in detailed description of the queer people who came to visit Donovan, and in these visitors the police recognize some of the most notorious safe-blowers and burglars in this part of the country.

reciation of my work:

Dr. G. H. Webster, Janesville, Wis.
Dear Doctor:—I suffered for some time with a cancer on my hand. I heard of your marvelous cures and decided to give you a trial, and I am happy to say that today I am entirely rid of the cancer. I can see no possible chance of a recurrence of the cancer, as the flesh is perfectly healthy where it was removed. I consider the price as nothing when I think of what you have done for me—possibly having saved my life.
